ST John at Hackney Churchyard Gardens has reached the penultimate round in the National Lottery Awards 2009 Best National Heritage Project category.

The restoration of the Churchyard Gardens, off Lower Clapton Road, was completed in 2007, and funded by the Heritage Lottery Fund, Groundwork London, and the Council. Extensive work was carried out to restore many of the garden's original features, including significant tombs and monuments. There was also planting of new trees and flowerbeds, installation of new lighting and the creation of a children's play area. Cllr Nargis Khan, the Council's Cabinet Member for Community Services said:

"The restoration project has proved to be a real success with local people, as well as experts, who awarded the gardens Green Flag status and a Hackney Design Award. Please show your support by voting." The first round of voting to select the UK's favourite

Lottery-funded projects is from 22 June until midday on 10 July. The three projects with the most votes in each of the seven categories will go through to the final round of public voting. ## CRIME'S FALLING

By Martine Large

CRIME in Hackney has fallen by almost 40 per cent in the last five years – the second biggest improvement in London.

That means there were over 10,000 fewer victims of crime in Hackney last year than five years ago.

However, neither the police nor the Council are complacent and recognise that more needs to be done to make people feel safer.

The British Crime Survey results released by the Home Office cover crimes such as assault, robbery, burglary, car crime, criminal damage and bike theft.

This follows news that youth crime in Hackney has fallen by 10 per cent, and knife crime in the borough has been reduced by 17 per cent. Cllr Alan Laing, the Council's Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "While the figures show that offences like knife and youth crime are down significantly, we know there is a lot more work to be done in reassuring young people and residents generally that the streets of Hackney are safer.

"The reality remains for young people that if you are involved in gangs, or are linked to other people who are involved in gangs, then you are more likely to be a victim of crime.

"As a Council, we're determined to listen to the concerns of the community and to respond; to help families who are vulnerable and protect those who come forward; and to help the police bring those responsible for serious crimes to court, as happened recently to the killers of Shaquille Smith."

Confidence in the police in Hackney has also risen, with almost seven out of 10 people saying they have confidence in the service – more than the London average. Acting Borough Commander Superintendent Mark Bird, of Hackney Police, said: "The streets are getting safer thanks to the hard work of police, our partners and residents' vigilance. By listening to the views of the community and tackling those issues which are important to them, we are also improving confidence in the police, ensuring more people come forward to report crimes, and more witnesses come forward, which results in successful convictions."

DID YOU KNOW?

Message from the Mayor

We must beat crime together

EVERY crime is one crime too many. But as well as reducing crime we need to reduce the fear of crime. That's why when talking to residents about crime in Hackney I often mention that behind the headline-grabbing cases, crime has actually been falling for a number of years.

I am all too well aware that this will be of little comfort to anyone who has been a victim of crime. But that does not mean that it isn't important to ensure that everyone knows the truth about crime in Hackney – be that Hackney residents, businesses who are thinking of locating in Hackney creating jobs in the borough, perhaps re-opening shops, or the media that perpetuate outdated stereotypes.

And the truth is that crime in Hackney is falling faster than just about anywhere else in London, with over 1,000 fewer car crimes, 500 fewer violent crimes and 200 fewer robberies in the past year than in the previous 12 months. In fact, last year there were 10,000 fewer victims of crime in Hackney than there were five years ago.

We must all do our bit to help beat crime

But too many of our communities know all too well how painful crime can be, and – whilst the Council and the police will continue to work together to make the borough a safer place – we all must do our bit to drive out crime altogether. We must all get the message across to young people that carrying a knife is never acceptable, nor is it wise to hang around with those that do. It makes you less safe and lands you with a lengthy prison sentence, as will happen to the six young men found guilty of murdering Shaquille Smith. This shows that even if you are not carrying the knife yourself, you will still be punished for being part of the gang.

We also need to be clear about the kind of behaviour that is and is not acceptable – a recent case involved a 13-year-old wandering the streets at midnight. No responsible parent or guardian can think allowing such a thing is acceptable. All members of the community must question this sort of behaviour and if they cannot deal with it alone they should seek support from the many services that are there to help. The Council will continue to work with the Police to make the borough safer, but everyone needs to play their part.

Giving something back

By Martine Large

THE River Lea Towpath has been given a summer spruce-up, thanks to the Community Payback scheme.

Offenders on the Government scheme cut back weeds and cleared litter, shifting over 400 sacks of cuttings and rubbish during their four-week stint.

The Towpath was chosen by Hackney residents, voting as part of a nationwide Ministry of Justice campaign, Justice Seen, Justice Done, to give local people a say in what work offenders should carry out.

Hackney residents were asked to vote on which of five projects in the borough should be tackled first. The remaining four – Bentley

This scheme is allowing people in our community a say in what work offenders should do

Road car park, Martel Place roundabout, the Well Street and Well St Market area, and Hoxton Street Market – will be worked on in the coming months.

Cllr Alan Laing, the Council's Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "Community Payback ensures that offenders give something back to the communities they have affected, and this scheme is allowing people in our community to have a say in what work they should do."

Local resident and keep fit instructor Katherine Charalambous said: "I take my children to the river Lea and it is a beautiful spot. Because so many people use it, it can always do with the extra clean up, and it is a way of Community Payback people putting something back into the local area."

Secretary of State for Justice, Jack Straw said: "It's crucial that the public should have a say in the community punishments offenders receive and that they have a right to know what offenders are doing in their neighbourhood to repay for the wrongs committed."

Praise for long face of the law

Mounted patrols chat to people at the base of St Augustine's Tower in the Narrowway

By Marcel Reinard

THE arrival of a team of highly-visible mounted police officers has been applauded by businesses. Operation Empath was launched on 4 May, because of concerns about anti-social behaviour in Mare Street and The Narrow Way.

Homerton's Safer Neighbourhoods Team decided to call on their colleagues on horseback to safeguard the area and reduce fear of crime. Extra support is also on hand from the Transport Operational Command Unit and other local officers. Inspector Andy Walker, from the Safer Neighbourhoods Team, said: "To achieve the same impact as two mounted officers, evidence suggests that we would need three or four times that number of foot officers." Traders have reported a noticeable reduction in shoplifting and an improved sense of safety in the area. They singled out the mounted officers as a particularly reassuring presence.

PC Paul Copeland from the Mounted Branch said: "These operations demonstrate what mounted officers do best – reduce crime and fear of crime. "We find that people from all areas of the community will approach us and chat." The operation continues and will be reviewed throughout the summer.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Gang guilty of teenager's murder

A GANG of six youths have been found guilty of murdering teenager Shaquille Smith on 31 August last year.

Shaquille, 14, was with his sister, 16, and an 18-year-old friend in the park at St Thomas's Place, E9, when the group struck shortly before 11.45pm. Shaquille was punched and kicked, and then stabbed. He was taken to the Royal London Hospital but died on 31 August from a single stab wound to the abdomen.

George Amponsah, 18, Godiowe Dufael, 20, Amisi Khama, 18, a 16-year-old boy, and two 17-year-old boys, all from Hackney, were convicted of murder. All six will be sentenced at the Old Bailey on 10 July.

Senior Investigating Officer Detective Chief Inspector Carl Mehta, of the Homicide and Serious Crime Command said: "Shaquille was a totally innocent young boy with no connection to any gang. Those who knew him describe him as a kind, caring and considerate boy and an excellent sportsman who had a great future ahead of him."

Cracking down on drugs

OFFICERS from Hackney Police's drugs squad have charged 15 people following an operation targeting drug dealers in the borough.

During Operation Dominix, the squad, which receives funding from the Council, spent 32 days over three months in various locations in Hackney. Test purchases saw them able to buy class A drugs on 115 occasions.

During the arrest phase, which took place during National Tackling Drugs Week from 8-12 June, 12 warrants were executed and 16 targets were arrested, along with a further two people who were not connected with the initial operation. 15 people were charged with over 60 offences connected to the supply of class A drugs. DS Jodie Tuff, of the squad, said: "This operation has been a success and has resulted in a large number of arrests which will have a positive and real impact for residents, businesses and visitors."

All those charged appeared at Thames Magistrates Court or Thames Youth Court on June 9 and 10, and have been remanded in custody.

Fined for underage tobacco sale

THE owners of a Shoreditch bar have been prosecuted for selling cigarettes to a 15-year-old, after an investigation by the Council's Trading Standards department.

Barworks (Hoxton) Ltd, owners of the Hoxton Bar and Kitchen in Hoxton Square, N1, pleaded guilty at Thames Magistrates Court on 2 June. The company was fined £800, with costs of £1,069.

The bar was caught through a test purchase, when a boy was able to buy a packet of cigarettes. The Council encourages bars and shops to use Challenge 21 – automatically asking customers appearing 21 or younger to show photographic identification proving their age. Businesses selling restricted products can get an advice pack from the Council by calling: 020 8356 4929.

Beating badge cheats

By
Martine Large

THE Council has a new anti-fraud team to crack down on people who abuse the Blue Badge disabled parking scheme.

It is estimated that one in 200 badges are stolen from vehicles every year.

The Hackney Blue Badge Fraud Team will be out and about from 1 July, monitoring misuse. Offenders can face a fine of up to £1,000, or even imprisonment for more serious offences.

Before 2005, 60 per cent of car break-ins in Hackney were to steal Blue Badges. This has dropped dramatically since the introduction of the free Companion Badge, which is specific to one vehicle. The Council urges all Blue Badge-holders to apply for a Companion Badge, which will also allow them to park in more places. Cllr Alan Laing, the Council's Cabinet member for Neighbourhoods, said: "Disabled people have told us that they want something done about fraud and misuse, which makes it harder for them to go about their daily life. A Blue Badge is a privilege that shouldn't be abused. When it is, we will take action."

The Council is sending a leaflet explaining the scheme to every Blue Badge holder in Hackney. It outlines the rules, and suggests ways to avoid your badge being used fraudulently.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Bath dream moves a step closer

THE Council's aim to restore Haggerston Baths has moved a step closer with the announcement of a £5million grant from the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF).

£5m has been secured towards the £20m cost of restoration

The baths are one of 101 projects across England to secure funding under the DCSF Co-location scheme, which aims to provide communities with access to multiple services under one roof.

The money is earmarked for the restoration of the building, with the aim of providing a wide range of facilities to help improve the health and well being of residents, particularly children, young people and families. In addition to health and fitness facilities, plans could include counselling rooms and a GP practice, and additional space for meetings, exhibitions and artists' studios.

Cllr Nargis Khan, the Council's Cabinet Member for Community Services, said: "I'm delighted that we've been successful in our funding bid. Securing this money has brought us closer to turning our vision for Haggerston Baths into reality."

Celebrate the Games

WITH the London 2012 Games edging closer, Hackney Museum is hosting a day of events to mark World Olympics Day on 23 June.

The day marks the date the International Olympic Committee was formed in 1894, and has been held annually since 1948 to promote participation in sport by men, women and children from all corners of the world, regardless of athletic ability.

The theme for the day is Move, Learn and Discover, and features a host of Olympic and Paralympicfocused activities, games, and a quiz. Visitors can also take the chance to see two London 2012 temporary exhibitions, the Big Blue Fence, and East London Line – Past Present and Future. For info, contact Hackney Museum on: 020 8356 3500 or visit www.hackney.gov.uk/museum. Residents keen to see how work is progressing at the Olympic Park site can book a place on a bus tour using a new number. Tours can be booked up to three months in advance, and take in venues including the Olympic Stadium and Aquatics Centre, as well as offering a chance to learn about environmental and community projects. “Hackney is committed to providing innovative services for carers”

Mayor Pipe met carers before the Routemaster toured the borough (above); staff share information and chat to carers (below)

By
James Willsher

CARERS in Hackney got on board with services designed for them, thanks to a Routemaster bus roadshow.

Events during National Carers' Week 2009 from 8-14 June were busy and well attended, with staff from the Council, as well as voluntary and health sectors offering information and advice.

Mayor of Hackney Jules Pipe and Cllr Nargis Khan, Cabinet Member for Community Services, met carers before the roadshow set off from the Town Hall on 11 June. It stopped at Dalston's Kingsland Shopping Centre, and then Morrisons supermarket, Stamford Hill, in the afternoon. Staff took the opportunity to chat with residents and identified 45 previously unknown carers.

Cllr Khan said: "Hackney is committed to providing high-quality, improved and innovative services for carers, and to recognising the central role they have in the lives of many of the borough's residents."

A host of other events and activities also took place in Hackney for Carers' Week, including afternoon tea at City and Hackney Carers' Centre; a dance for carers organised by City and Hackney Mind; trips to Spa London; and a tour and introduction to library services and Hackney Museum.

There were information stalls at Homerton Hospital, GP surgeries, libraries, and social services offices

Traveller History Month.

Cllr Nargis Khan, the Council's Cabinet Member for Community Services, said: "Hackney has a wonderfully diverse community we are keen to share and celebrate."

Throughout June, Hackney libraries, together with the Travellers Education Service, the London Gypsy and Traveller Unit, and Hackney Museum, have held events to raise awareness. Highlights included an opening event at Hackney Museum, and a book launch by award-winning teenage fiction writer Alan Gibbons.

There is still time to catch the Passing Places exhibition at Homerton Library. Focusing on history, culture, lifestyles and traditions it runs until 30 June. A question and answer session at Hackney Central Library on 24 June offers a chance to learn about the borough's Irish Traveller communities. It runs from 6-7.30pm. A prize draw quiz for children is available at both libraries until the end of the month.

Top ethnic employer

HACKNEY holds pole position as the country's top council for employing senior management staff from ethnic minorities for the second year running.

More than a quarter of the Council's top five per cent earners are from ethnic minorities, the highest in England, according to a new survey from GMB union, using Government information available from 149 councils. The Council runs a programme called Phoenix, to help existing staff from black and minority ethnic backgrounds, and staff with disabilities, supporting them to gain management skills. More than 300 employees have taken part so far since it was set up in 2000.

Cllr Karen Alcock, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, said: "As a borough with such a diverse population, our workforce should reflect the communities it serves, and we want this diversity to be present at all levels of the Council."

Helping residents to beat recession

RECESSION advice from the Council is now available for residents.

A leaflet and web page have been designed, which are available online and from Council offices.

The leaflet collects, in one place, contact details for support on a range of issues, including rescheduling rent and mortgage payments, and accessing training to improve job prospects.

It also covers managing money and debt; childcare and schools; benefits residents could be entitled to; help with stress and worry; and the National Minimum Wage.

Mayor of Hackney Jules Pipe said:

"The Council is on the side of local residents. The current climate has created uncertainty for many people, and we are doing all we can to support residents, including freezing our share of the Council Tax for the fourth year running."

Case study

Ingrid Beattie, a mother of three children aged between six and 10, completed an EIPP programme earlier this year.

She praised the techniques that have given her the knowledge and skills to manage difficult behaviour at home, which had become an issue.

Ingrid (below) said: "The programme has been hugely beneficial for me and my family. It has given me skills for life to deal with all sorts of difficult behaviour in a calm and positive way. "Managing difficult behaviour is no longer a major battle. For parents wanting to connect with and support their children, for whatever reasons, I'd encourage them to contact the EIPP team for a place on the programme."

Helping parents

By
Gracia Douglas

DO you want to support your child and help them improve their chances of success at nursery, school and beyond?

Hackney's Early Intervention Parenting Programme (EIPP) offers a range of services to support parents in encouraging their children to succeed in school and at home. It aims to help people to understand children aged three to 13; become better parents; and provide language, reading and writing support for pupils in Reception, Year One and Year Two.

Programmes run all year during term time, and last from one to two terms. Free creches are available for pre-school children.

Led by a consultant clinical psychologist, the EIPP is staffed by a varied team who provide all kinds of input. Group leaders aim to create a trusting environment for parents to exchange ideas and try new approaches.

Cllr Rita Krishna, the Council's Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: "There are many challenges to be faced when bringing up children. Local public services need to support parents in this most important role. The EIPP is one such service which contributes to making Hackney a good place to grow up. If you are trying to make sense of your child's behaviour, get in touch and see if the EIPP can help"

The EIPP is a partnership between the Council, The Learning Trust, the East London NHS Foundation Trust and NHS City and Hackney Community Health Services.

The programme is also working with the National Academy for Parenting Practitioners on a research programme to find out about what helps children achieve.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Learn about the new Line

Models of the new line are on display

AN exhibition exploring the past, present and future of the East London Line is on display at Hackney Museum.

During the construction of the East London Line extension, Transport for London (TfL) has worked with archaeologists from the Museum of London, who excavated parts of the route. Visitors to the exhibition will be able to see artefacts, which include a Mesolithic flint, a Medieval tomb brass, and a Victorian comb. The line will provide Hackney's first proper link to the Tube, with new stations at Dalston, Haggerston, Hoxton and Shoreditch by 2010, and a link to Highbury & Islington due in 2011. Cllr Nargis Khan, the Council's Cabinet Member for Community Services said: "Work on the line is one of the most visible activities in the borough taking place in readiness for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. Better transport links will benefit all Hackney residents and visitors by providing improved access to the rest of the city, so why not learn more about how the borough's transport infrastructure will look in 2011." The exhibition is at the museum until 4 July, when it will move to other venues across London. ### Dive in for some music

WET Sounds returns to London Fields Lido on 4 July ahead of its second national tour this summer. Part sound art gallery, part underwater festival, Wet Sounds promises an alternative audio experience for no additional cost above the pool's entrance fee.

Last year saw a host of eccentric couture, from crocodiles to brightly coloured kagools. Wet Sounds is supported by the Council's cultural development team, Arts Council England and the PRS Foundation. A closing event takes place at Clissold Leisure Centre, N16, on 22 July. ### Festival in the park CLISSOLD Park will host Day Mer Culture and Arts Festival's closing event as the gala reaches its 20th anniversary. The free festival – which celebrates the Turkish and Kurdish community – will feature a panel discussion on the democratisation of Turkey, hosted by Hayat TV chief editor Aydin Cubukcu; guest speakers, including MPs, councillors and performers from Turkey; and traditional food and folk dancing. A launch event took place in the assembly rooms at the Town Hall on 12 June.

This year's festival focuses on events for children, including a drama workshop on 20 June with writer and actor Fahri Bozbas at Holmleigh Primary School, N16. The closing event begins at 2pm on 6 July. For info visit: www.daymer.org

Creating a greener borough

Thousands of residents turned out for the annual BeRecreative event in London Fields, for fun with a serious message

By
Gracia Douglas

More than 2,000 people turned out to enjoy all sorts of activities at BeRecreative festival in London Fields – while finding out more about doing their bit to help the environment.

There were more than 20 different stalls at the fourth annual BeRecreative event. Visitors enjoyed making hats from recycled materials, creating their own organic drinks with the smoothie bike, and playing 'green games'.

The 'give or take' area, where residents could bring unwanted items and swap them for others, proved popular, with items from books to bikes being exchanged.

There was plenty for young people as well, with sustainable art workshops for children and the Taru Brazil drum band. A bouncy castle and face-painter were also kept busy throughout the day.

“It's so rewarding seeing the community getting together for such a good cause”

The free, family event on 6 June was a joint effort between the Council's recycling team and Green Champion network, and was held as part of the Love London Green Festival.

CLlr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said:

“The event is a fun way for everyone to see how their contributions can help to reuse, recycle and reduce waste. Recycling is a priority for the Council. I'm delighted that so many residents continue to support our efforts to improve our local environment and help make the

Springfield Park Play Space Survey 2009

During Summer 2008, Hackney Council asked Springfield Park users for their views on the park's sports and leisure facilities.

Results showed us that a majority of respondents thought that a children's playground was definitely needed and that the preference was to locate it next to the tennis courts. Funding has now been secured and the project is entering the next phase.

The new survey gives you the opportunity to tell us in more detail what sort of play space you would like to see.

If you wish to complete the survey online, please visit www.groundwork-surveys.org.uk/springfieldpark

You can pick up a copy at the park café from 22 June – 3 July. We will be holding drop-in sessions where you can talk to a member of staff:

City and Hackney

Hackney is one of the most diverse places in the UK. In this regular feature, we profile the borough's great & good or just plain interesting

From small seeds

Anne Keothavong grew up in Hackney, and it was in the borough's parks that she learned to play; her greatest moment to date has been taking on Venus Williams (right)

By
Lorraine Hammond

AS Wimbledon, the biggest tennis tournament in the world, approaches, British number one Anne Keothavong is ready.

Born and bred in Hackney, Anne was raised by her parents, who emigrated to the UK from Laos. It was at a very young age, playing short tennis with her older brother, that her love for the game began.

"My parents introduced me to tennis to give me something to do," says Anne, who is the second of four children. I started playing short tennis at four-and-a-half with my older brother at the Michael Sobell Centre in Islington, before moving on to lawn tennis when I was seven. I really enjoyed it."

She attended Kingsland High School – which was on the site of what is now the Petchey Academy – and throughout her school life continued to play the sport she loved, practising in her favourite place, Clissold Park, and aspiring to her idol, former world number-one Monica Seles.

Anne won a string of junior and senior nationals, and then, in 2001, she got her first real taste of success, winning her first professional tournament, and impressing the crowds with her right-handed forehand and double-handed backhand shots. In the same year she received a wildcard entry into Wimbledon and steadily rose through the ranks. She recalls her feelings about playing at this prestigious event for the first time.

"I've noticed a lot of changes since I was growing up"

"It's very exciting and nerve-wracking at the same time. It still is. It's such a big tournament and an important place for British players that we all want to do well. It's the biggest tournament in the world and, as a British player competing there, it's the most important one."

With the support of her family, Anne continues to travel the world, playing in championships and tournaments. But when she's looking for a place to relax, there's nothing better than returning to her home town of Hackney to chill with her friends and family.

"I love going to the park. I enjoy hanging out on a nice sunny day," says Anne. "I view myself as a Londoner and I've noticed a lot of changes since I was growing up. I think London as a whole has changed, the place is developing and there seems to be a lot more going on."

Currently ranked 49 in the world, Anne copes with the pressure of the ups and downs of the game by focusing on her performance. Being ambitious, her strong family influence, and Hackney roots, help her to see any challenges as a positive. Her goal now is climbing up the ranks. A good fortnight at Wimbledon this year will ensure that she does that.

All your recycling questions answered

Q: I have been using compostable liners in my blue bin since they have been available at shops in Hackney. I have noticed similar liners in the supermarket. Can I use these?

A: All food waste collected from households in the borough is delivered to a composting site operated by London Waste in Edmonton, North London. In 2007/8 105 tonnes of this compost was delivered back to Hackney and used in parks, green spaces, schools and allotments across the borough. London Waste has recently allowed the use of any compostable liner bearing the European Standard compostable symbol (pictured). As long as the liners you buy have this symbol, you can use them to line your blue bin. Any blue bins lined with plastic bags will not be collected. This is because if loads containing plastic or other materials are collected, the entire load could be rejected at the composting facility, meaning everyone's efforts go to waste. # New fleet cleans up

Gracia Douglas

EIGHT new vehicles have been introduced to Hackney's waste services in an effort to provide a fleets with among the cleanest emissions in the capital.

The two 12-tonne compact refuse collection trucks, five road sweepers and a street washer were the first of 20 new vehicles to be delivered as part of the Council's ongoing investment in the fleet.

Cllr Alan Laing, the Council's Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "We've listened to our residents and have done a lot of work to reduce carbon emissions and improve cleanliness across the borough."

"The new vehicles are a significant investment in

"We've listened to our residents and have done a lot of work to reduce carbon emissions and improve cleanliness" equipment that will support the excellent work of our street cleaners, as the Council strives to make Hackney cleaner and greener."

The Council is in the process of renewing and modernising the existing street cleaning fleet to improve efficiency overall.

The next step is to operate more vehicles on biodiesel fuels from sustainable sources. It is also looking into the possibility of introducing electrically-powered rubbish collection vehicles.

Bottles bank up water for Africa

HACKNEY is the first council in London to fund the installation of a water pump in southern rural Africa through buying charity water.

The 'elephant pump' is being built in the village of Mthwalo, in Malawi, to provide a constant supply of clean water.

The Council has been buying water in bottles – recycled after use – from charity Thirsty Planet for the last three years.

Thirsty Planet donates funds from sales to partner charity Pump Aid, which works with communities in southern Africa.

The Council has bought enough bottles to reach the £250 required to install a pump, and is on its way to a second.

Cllr Sophie Linden, Cabinet Member for Sustainability, said: "The Council is committed to sustainability, not only in the borough, but also in the way the Council is run."

"This is an example of what can be done when organisations choose to buy goods from responsible sources."

Paul Martin, managing director of Waterbrands, which owns Thirsty Planet, said: "The support that Hackney Council is giving to Pump Aid is tremendous."

"Simply by choosing Thirsty Planet it is helping improve day-to-day living and even save the lives of some of the poorest people in the world."

WINGED creatures have been spotted making the most of the good weather in Hackney.

A group of Painted Lady butterflies has been enjoying the pink Valerian and sage on the roundabout junction of Lauriston Road and Victoria Park Road. They are usually found in the Atlas Mountains of Morocco and are thought to be resting before they fly on to the next part of their journey.

Meanwhile, a family of ducklings has been making themselves at home in Clapton Pond under the watchful eye of a mother duck.

The event, organised by Clapton Park Tenant Management Organisation (CPTMO), will celebrate the ecology of the Clapton Park estates, and highlight the area's biodiversity and natural environment, known for its wildflowers and poppies.

The Grass Roof Company, which maintains the grounds and worked with the tenant management team to give the estate a revamp, will be offering advice on gardening in the city.

Visitors to the family fun day can also expect music, stalls, face-painting and a bouncy castle.

CPTMO manages three estates on behalf of Hackney Homes.

The Clapton Park Festival Fun Day 2009 takes place on 27 June from 12noon to 4pm, at Gilpin Square, Clapton Park Estate.

PUPILS from Gayhurst Primary had their eyes opened to architecture during a visit to the award-winning Hothouse building in Richmond Road, E8.

As part of Junior Open House 2009, Gayhurst children met Free Form artists, and Cany Ash from Sakula architects, which designed Hothouse. They toured the building and attended workshops to stir an interest in design.

Junior Open House aims to give children an understanding of the impact architecture can have on their lives, and give them the tools and

The workshops were part of Legacy Now! – a programme from artistic renewal and regeneration charity Free Form.

It offers opportunities for children and young people to explore their creativity towards and beyond London 2012.

Putting something back nets award

A PROFESSIONAL basketball player and former Hackney Community College (HCC) student has picked up an Association of Colleges Gold award at the House of Commons.

The trophy recognises those who have studied at further education colleges and gone on to excel in their chosen field. As an alumnus of HCC's Basketball Academy, Jeff Danchie received a scholarship to university and went on to play basketball professionally; he later returned to the college as a part-time sports co-ordinator determined to ‘put something back’. On collecting his award, Jeff said: “I am so proud. And if in winning this award I have inspired just one more person to achieve, it has been worth it”.

Jeff was presented with a unique, handcrafted trophy, and current student Gabrielle Boateng – on behalf of HCC – collected a plaque congratulating the college for contributing to his success.

Stirring words

THE Council is offering one young person in Hackney a unique opportunity to see their literary efforts on a tree plaque on Stoke Newington Common, to mark the abolition of the slave trade.

The unveiling of the plaque will coincide with the UN Day to Commemorate the Abolition of the Transatlantic Slave Trade in the UK, and the Council is looking for inspirational words to display.

Send the Council your words and they could be displayed on a tree

Eight to 16-year-olds in the borough can enter the competition by writing a piece of prose or poetry of up to 100 words, on the theme Free to Grow. Submissions, which must be received by 5pm on 14 July, should include full name, age, school attended, a contact telephone number, and, for under-16s, a parent or guardian's signature giving permission to enter. E-mail entries to: cultural.development@hackney.gov.uk; or hand them in at schools, libraries or Hackney Museum in Reading Lane, E8.

Teach for the stars

A HACKNEY headteacher has reached the final four in his category in the prestigious Teaching Awards 2009. Kevin McDonnell of Stormont House, E5, will join a cluster of educational stars from schools across London on 23 June to find out if he has won one of 12 gongs up for grabs. Baroness Shirley Williams, former Secretary of State for Education and current chair of the Teaching Awards UK panel, will lead a workshop for all finalists before the ceremony. The event will be hosted by BBC TV News anchor Riz Lateef.

£6m revamp set to go ahead

THE Council has approved funding for a £6million remodel of Orchard Primary School in Holcroft Road, E9.

Pupils from Orchard have been involved in the consultation process and, together with architects Rivington Street Studio, discussed ideas and proposals.

Cllr Rita Krishna joined children and staff to celebrate the first part of Hackney's Primary Capital Programme (PCP), which is a national initiative to transform primary schools.

She said: “The Council is committed to ensuring primary school pupils receive a quality modern education.

“Improving the physical environment at Orchard Primary is an example of this.

“It was wonderful to meet the pupils at the school and hear them talk so passionately about the plans to extend and rebuild the current building, and how they believe it will help them learn better.”

The PCP strategy in Hackney was agreed by Cabinet in June 2008, and by the Department of Children, Schools and Families in November 2008. It is expected that work will start on site early in 2010.

Roots of suspense

Alfred Hitchcock in East London premiere, 7pm, Heathcote Music Venue, 344 Grove Green Road, E11, 27 June

A YOUNG East End boy was dropped off at a police station early last century with a note from his father telling the duty officer to lock him up for bad behaviour. This experience, along with his strict upbringing, had a profound effect on young Alfred Hitchcock, who later reached international acclaim with his stories of twisted morals, corrupt members of authority and the wrongly accused.

Now a documentary celebrating the early work of Hitchcock and his time at the studio that broke him in, Gainsborough Pictures in Hoxton, is to be premiered in East London. The event will focus on how his east London roots and tutorage formed the creativity of the 'master of suspense'.

The screening will also feature a showing of the UK's first talking film, Blackmail, and a Hitchcock silent film accompanied by a six-piece jazz ensemble. The studio, which also nurtured the early career of Lord Richard Attenborough was turned into an apartment block in 2004, but a giant sculpture of Hitchcock, facing Hollywood, remains at New North Road.

Blaze – Barbican summer events in Hackney, various venues, from 25 June

THE Barbican is stepping from its City of London walls this summer to take a cornucopia of arts and acts into Hackney. Its Do Something Different This Summer programme will highlight east London's fluid culture by combining world-class contemporary music and dance performers with special events by local schools, artists and communities.

The programme kicks off in the borough on 25 June at the Hackney Empire with a night of Cuban music celebrating the 50th anniversary of the revolution in Cuba. Showcasing the African and rural roots of contemporary styles, the event will feature a company of singers, percussionists and dancers performing original West African music styles born out of impromptu musical get-togethers at the Havana harbour in 1961.

There will also be free outdoor events. Dancing in the Square on 27 June takes place at Gillette Square, Dalston, and features music and dancing from the Cuban group Changüi de Guantanamo.

World in Motion Day on 19 July, as part of the Shoreditch Festival, is an event made by and for young people and includes a performance from Stoke Newington School and Sixth Form drummer group.

Also on 19 July, DJ Gilles Peterson & Snowboy come to Cargo in Rivington Street with Beyond the Ballroom – Celebration of UK Jazz Dance.

The new Shoreditch Park amphitheatre will have a free screening of Buster Keaton's 1928 classic Steamboat Bill Jr on 18 July, with live piano accompaniment from Colin Sell from Radio 4's Sorry I Haven't Got a Clue.

There will also be art and architectural projects, including a rural retreat in the heart of Dalston that highlights radical nature in the borough.

The exhibition explores the way maps affect our creative ideas

By Marcel Reinard

Off The Map: Mapping the Creative Process, 9-11 July, 12noon-6pm, Rivington Place London EC2A

THE significance of cartographic language is being highlighted in an exhibition focusing on the way we interact with maps and how it can deepen our understanding of identity.

For Mapping The Creative Process, students from Hackney Community College worked alongside artists Gayle Chong Kwan and Agnes Poitevin-Navarre in a week-long project that explored two different ways maps can affect the inter-twinning of creative ideas and methodologies.

The project hopes to explore the political, emotional and cultural significance of the space we inhabit, in light of the reliance of physical world mapping most evident in satellite tracking and imagery. At the outset of the project Agnes focused on the graphic and visual strategies of mapping the creative processes and how shared experiences and memories can affect narrative.

As a counter-balance, later in the week, Gayle concentrated on non-visual sensory activities, from which the students developed installations, objects and performances they or the viewer were able to experience or participate in.

Paperback writer

Novelist Joe Dunthorne in front of his converted Tube carriage office

Interview by
Lara Akinawo, 19

HIS first novel, Submarine, is being turned into a film, and he's well into his second novel. Joe Dunthorne, 26, spoke to Contrast from his converted Tube train office about prose, poetry and peanuts.

"The first writing I did, I was quite young, maybe 12 years old. I was really into computer games and I used to make text games.

"They had no graphics. You could type in instructions for the characters to do things, like 'put on a hat', or 'go out of the room.' I don't really know why, but my game was called Depression.

"Then I was in a band with my friend Dave. We were called Peanuts Are Bad, named after my nut allergy. Very edgy. He wouldn't do lyrics, so he told me to do them, and that kind of morphed into poetry.

“When you start writing, you don't really know where it's going”

"When you start writing, you don't really know where it's going and you get to discover something, maybe not about yourself, but about your mind. You're just running with a thought and that's what I enjoy – the kind of splurging bit of writing. I love the editing too. I really enjoy spending ages on a word or a sentence or an image.

"The first chapter of Submarine must have gone through about 30 revisions. The later chapters, maybe only seven or eight.

"The first chapter you think is much more important so you spend the most time on it. It was the oldest, so I'd re-tried it a million different ways – a million different first sentences.

"I like my prose and poetry to be quite familiar with swearing and all the fun, weird bits of language. I've got a really fun 10-year-old character in the book. I'm writing at the moment. It's set in a commune and they have tons and tons of international visitors, and he learns different swear words from all the people who come through. There is so much great linguistic invention that comes through playground language."

• Submarine is for sale in bookshops and online.

Commitment to youth rewarded

THE Council's promise to make the borough 'a good place to grow up' has been given a boost by Hackney's Youth Service picking up a National Youth Agency (NYA) Quality Mark National Award.

The award, made by the NYA executive board on 21 May, is another milestone in the borough's journey towards becoming recognised nationally for the quality of its services.

Assessors from the organisation were particularly impressed by the commitment to youth participation and involvement in every aspect of service planning and delivery in the borough. Cllr Rita Krishna, the Council's Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: "This award is fantastic news for young people in Hackney. It is also a testament of the dedication of our staff who have, in the space of three years, transformed the Youth Service from one branded as 'inadequate' by Ofsted, to one that can be justly proud of its excellent provision."

More than a quarter of Hackney's 210,000 residents are aged under 19. They are encouraged to get involved at every level of the Council's work.

HYP members with Prime Minister Gordon Brown

A word in your ear please, Prime Minister

MEMBERS of Hackney's Youth Parliament had some hints to offer the Prime Minister during a round table session at Downing Street.

Gordon Brown asked the young people, elected by their peers, for their views on subjects including obesity, volunteering, youth sports and knife crime.

Ismael Zakari, 16, Youth Parliament member for North East Hackney, felt that Gordon Brown was taking young people's concerns about safety seriously. He said: "It seems like he wants to work with us on this one. He listened to what we had to say, and his view was that it can be done."

The discussion was part of a consultation with youth groups from across the UK, to learn about issues that are important to them. Cllr Rita Krishna, the Council's Cabinet Member for Children's Services, said: "Young people can, and do, influence what happens on their streets, on their estates and in their schools. Through initiatives such as Hackney's Youth Parliament, they are finding a voice and discovering that when they voice their opinions they are listened to."

NATIONAL Diabetes Week was marked in Hackney with an event to raise people's awareness of the condition.

Striking the Balance

took place on 16 June at Ocean in Mare Street.

Around 260 people attended and were able to take part in diabetes screenings, weight, blood pressure and foot health assessments, and exercise classes.

Advice on services for diabetics was available, and there was also a chance to watch cookery demonstrations, and listen to talks from experts, including regular from the BBC's The One Show Azmina Govindji.

The event was organised by the Hackney Diabetes Centre, which is based at Homerton Hospital. The centre provides help and advice to more than 10,000 people living with the condition in Hackney and the City.

It recently expanded its lay education team, which offers advice for people with type-two diabetes.

Fighting hepatitis

THREE pharmacies in Hackney are leading the way in the fight against the hepatitis.

Kingsland, Haggerston and Finstead pharmacies have joined forces with NHS City and Hackney and The Hepatitis C Trust to be the first to provide on-demand testing for these cancer-causing viruses.

Hackney is one of only five areas nationwide taking part in the pilot project. Testing for hepatitis B and C infection will be on offer until 30 November.

Pharmacists will advise customers on the pros and cons of testing; take a simple blood test; and give them their results. Those who test positive for either virus will be referred to their GP.

Rod Watson, from NHS City and Hackney, said: "This new testing programme will help us get people into treatment services more quickly, and prevent the spread of these viruses in our community."

Mukhtar Manji, pharmacist from Kingsland Pharmacy, said: "I am delighted to be one of the first pharmacies offering free, on-demand hepatitis tests. People will find accessing confidential hepatitis testing as easy as buying a tube of toothpaste."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Health books 'on prescription'

HACKNEY Libraries and City and Hackney Primary Care Trust are launching a scheme that enables mental health practitioners to 'prescribe' self-help books.

The confidential Books on Prescription scheme will allow people experiencing mild to moderate mental health problems to borrow high-quality self-help books from libraries on recommendation from their GP or other mental health practitioner.

Texts available cover a range of areas such as anxiety, phobias, depression, eating disorders and low self-esteem.

The Council's Cabinet Member for Community Services, Cllr Nargis Khan, said: "I am pleased our libraries can now supplement the work being done by our healthcare colleagues in treating people with mild mental health problems."

Books on Prescription will be available from 29 June at CLR James, Shoreditch, Homerton, Stoke Newington, Stamford Hill and Hackney Central libraries. For info e-mail Amber Linell on: amber.linell@hackney.gov.uk

Chance to talk about disability

PEOPLE with physical disabilities, sensory impairments or long-term health conditions are invited to come along and talk about issues that affect them at an event on 26 June. People aged between 18 and 64 can learn more about local facilities, including care services, exercise and leisure, socialising and volunteering, and nutrition, at a health and social care consultation day.

The event, funded by the Council and City and Hackney PCT, has been organised by Disability Backup and takes place from 10am-4.30pm at the Human Rights Action Centre, New Inn Yard, Shoreditch, EC2.

A centre of excellence

A SERVICE that gives health advice and support to young people in Hackney has been praised for being 'an area of best practice in England'.

NHS City and Hackney's service for 11-19-year-olds, CHYPS Plus, is based at Lower Clapton Health Centre, in Lower Clapton Road. The results of a national independent review of teenage health projects by the Institute of Education's Social Science Research Unit reported 'high levels of satisfaction' among centre users.

The centre is due to launch its website:

www.chypsplus.co.uk with an event at the Levy Centre in Lower Clapton Road on 2 July from 9.30am-4pm.

CHYPS Plus provides advice and support for teenagers in Hackney

Hackney is now recognised as the most improved Council in the UK, serving one of the most diverse populations. Regeneration is improving housing, public services and transport links. Crime is falling. Exam results are up. The Olympics are coming...

Job Profile Fiona Brew

Consultant Social Worker for Children & Young People talks to Hackney Today about Reclaiming Social Work

How does the Social Work Unit work?

We work to reduce the number of children in care by providing intensive, high-quality, therapeutic and practical support for families.

The unit links in with family members and professional agencies to try and keep young people in the family home, or within the support network.

It is led by a consultant social worker and supported by a social worker, a children's practitioner, a family therapist and a unit co-ordinator.

By working together we have the resources, support and time to meet the needs of Hackney's families.

What are the ideal qualities needed to work in the unit?

You need to be skilled, energised and flexible, open to new ideas.

We offer the opportunity to develop insight into working with children and families, the freedom to practice social work at a high level, and ongoing support and training.

Why is it good to work in Hackney?

The unit shares a sense of ownership over cases, and our innovative approach gives us the best chance of effecting positive change with families. We can respond quickly without having to go through several rungs of management, and with the support of a unit co-ordinator, social workers spend more time with families rather than filling in forms.

For me, the unit approach continues to improve my practice as I learn from the other professionals.

Could you help people manage their Direct Payments?

intervention to safeguard children and promote positive outcomes.

You'll take responsibility and be accountable for your work and build professional relationships with children and families.

You'll get good support from the Council and freedom to practise at a high level, with development opportunities.

You should be General Social Care Council (GSCC) registered, with a recognised social work qualification, and have evidence of continuing professional development.

The Council will carry out an enhanced CRB check on shortlisted candidates.

Nursery story

By Sally England
Local Studies Librarian

THIS year sees the 250th anniversary of the founding of the famous Kew Gardens in west London. But east London once also had a celebrated horticultural nursery here in Hackney, though today almost all traces of it have disappeared.

Joachim Conrad Loddiges (c1738-1826) was born in Germany, the son of Casper Vuchant Lochlies. Casper was gardener to the Elector of Hanover, who was also King George II of England. Young Conrad worked with his father as an apprentice gardener, and then in 1758 travelled to Haarlem in Holland. The Seven Years War meant he needed a travel permit to guarantee safe passage, and this grand document, granted by the French Army, still survives in Hackney Archives.

In Haarlem, Conrad met Dr John Sylvester, an army physician now remembered by Sylvester Road, E8, who was preparing to move to a small estate in Hackney on the west side of Mare Street.

Sylvester wanted his new gardens to be improved, and invited his young German friend to become his gardener. It was probably at this time that Conrad Lochlies Anglicised his name to Conrad Loddiges.

While in Holland Conrad seems to have acquired the seeds of a plant never before grown in England. He sowed these in Dr Sylvester's garden – the first examples of the now well-known common mauve rhododendron (Rhododendron ponticum).

Conrad stayed in charge of the gardens until January 1770 when, a month after marrying Sara Aldous, he wrote to Dr Sylvester asking for advice on setting up his own seed-selling business.

By 1775 Conrad had established himself in a small shop, with a tiny nursery ground at the rear of the premises, on the west side of Mare Street, on the corner of London Lane.

He started issuing printed catalogues, a rarity at the time and even more unusual for being not only in English but also German and Latin. He is also credited with introducing edible rhubarb to Britain, something supposed to have been tasted for the first time at one of Hackney's many girls' schools.

Conrad's business was a success and he soon leased more land in Mare Street. One of these parcels of land was where the old Elizabethan mansion of Barber's Barn stood. Conrad let the building out to a schoolmaster for a short period, but later demolished it and used the site to build his greenhouses, lay out a single nursery, and build himself a modest new house as well as building Loddiges Place, a tree-lined terrace of four houses on Mare Street between Darnley and Devonshire (now Brenthouse) Roads.

• The later history of Loddiges under the management of Conrad's son George will be explored in the next History Page.

WHO YOU GONNA CALL?

Ray Agar is Head of Hackney Service Centre

AFTER 10 years of managing call centres, Ray Agar is very calm and articulate. He took on the role of manager of the Hackney Service Centre (HSC) in December 2008. It's his first role at a local authority, and he revels in the challenges that each day brings. He says: "There is always a new service or policy being offered by the Council that we need to provide residents with information about."

Ray manages more than 40 staff, including three team managers, learning and development managers, and the HSC resource team. "The HSC is a busy office, responding to more than 1,400 calls a day. My team are constantly learning, and reviewing Council services to ensure we provide residents with the most up-to-date information," he says. What is the best part of the job? "It is rewarding to go home of an evening and know that I have made a difference in someone's life – whether it was providing a resident with information they were unaware of, or helping a homeless person find accommodation."

First contact

By
Nick Rutherford

IF you need information about the borough's services, then the Hackney Service Centre (HSC) should be your first point of contact.

As the main contact point for the Council, the HSC can provide information to residents across 26 service areas, ranging from parking, waste and recycling, to library services, homelessness, noise management and anti-social behaviour.

Residents can pay for Council Tax, parking permits and fines, and the HSC can also send forms out to residents who want to apply for housing.

Recently, the HSC expanded services even further to cover carers, who can now call the centre to find out what benefits they are entitled to, book assessments, and get advice.

The HSC responds to 35,000 calls and 3,000 e-mail enquiries a month.

Its staff also offer an extensive translation service, covering 61 languages, including British Sign Language.

During office hours, callers to the HSC will always be able to speak to a real person, rather than an automated service. The team aims to answer questions on the spot, and will only transfer calls as a final resort.

The Hackney Service Centre is residents' first point of contact when they need information about the Council

People considering a career change should keep the HSC in mind. The team aims to recruit from the local community, and hopes to be advertising soon at job centres in the borough.

OLYMPIC cycling hero Sir Chris Hoy dropped in on pupils at Northwold Primary school in Upper Clapton for a cycling breakfast.

The event was also part of a Kellogg's Cycling Launch, encouraging children to get on their bikes as a great way to stay active and enjoy the fresh air.

Northwold School won a Kellogg's Breakfast Club Award in the Healthy Lifestyle category earlier this year.

The company works with learning charity ContinYou to develop and support breakfast clubs across the UK.

Sir Chris became the first British Olympian for 100 years to claim three golds at one Games at the 2008 Olympics in Beijing. This came when he won the men's keirin, the men's team sprint and also the men's individual sprint.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Charity riders show their love

THREE cyclists from the borough did more than wear their hearts on their sleeves when they rode their bikes to raise money for the Stroke Association.

Brian Voakes, from De Beauvoir Town, and Adrian Brooks and Matthew Cox, from Stoke Newington, proudly sported their I love Hackney T-shirts when they took part in a 33-mile London Cycling Campaign ride across all the bridges on the Thames, from Tower Bridge to Hampton Court, raising £2,000. Brian said: "We are all proud of Hackney, especially because Hackney is cycle friendly, so decided to show off to the crowd. We got an amazing response to our T-shirts – we were cheered the entire way!"

Brian, who enlisted his fellow riders, dedicated his ride to his friend's mother Patricia Walsh, who died from complications from a stroke the week before the ride.

Sign up for Freewheeling fun

HACKNEY cyclists can now sign up for the third annual London Freewheel. The free bike ride on 20 September offers riders of all ages a chance to make the most of traffic-free London.

The popular event, which attracted 50,000 people last year, is set to follow a new, longer 15km route. The event fills up fast, so keen cyclists should bag a place as soon as possible. For info and to register visit:

www.london.gov.uk/freewheel

Roadworks to install bus lane

WEEKEND roadworks are due to take place in Homerton Road between Kings Mead Way and Mabley Street.

The works, to install a second section of the westbound bus lane, will take place on the weekends of 27-28 June and 4-5 July. This includes resurfacing the road; marking out the bus lane; and upgrading existing bus stops.

The works will be carried out between 8.30am and 6.30pm. When works are in progress, lane closures with two-way traffic control will be in place. Emergency access and access to side roads will not be affected.

No work will take place on weekdays, but there may be temporary road surfaces and markings. Bus stops may be suspended or relocated during the works. For info call: 020 8356 2897; or e-mail: info@hackney.gov.uk

Walking, talking, rapping winner

A DALSTON pupil scooped the Hackney prize in a Kiss FM Walk to School Week competition.

Hackney primary school children were encouraged to make their way to classes on foot during the week from 18-22 May.

Michelle Nwachukwu, 10, from Our Lady and St Joseph RC Primary, E8, won the competition with a rap about walking to school. She was recorded for a Kiss FM podcast, and won a digital camera and Walk 'n' Talk t-shirt.

In total 239 entries were received, all of whom won a 'Strider' badge. Nine pupils bagged runner-up prizes of Walk'n'Talk t-shirts.

Winner Michelle recording her rap for Tom Whitlow from Kiss FM

They were Una, Aoife, Phoebe-Jane and Rebecca from Our Lady and St Joseph; Jenine and Ramani from St John and St James Primary in Homerton; and Scarlett, Molly and Kyra from Jubilee Primary, N16.

Cllr Alan Laing, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods, said: "This year's Walk to School competition has been a great success. It has helped raise awareness and encouraged young people to do their bit to support the Council's bid to tackle climate change and promote sustainable transport in the borough."

Now a new competition called the Golden Shoe has been launched. The winner will be the Hackney school that records the highest percentage of students walking to school at least once a week during June, July and September.

The Mayor & Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years.

The last borough elections were in May 2006.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They all hold advice surgeries where you can meet your local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, they can often point you in the right direction and tell you who you need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

Please note: some councillors do not hold surgeries during the school summer holidays. Call the number below to check.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/1-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

The Mayor

Jules Pipe

Hackney has an executive Mayor, Jules Pipe, who is not a councillor, but is directly elected by the entire borough. The Mayor is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of the Council who is elected annually from the borough's 57 councillors. Cllr Muttalip Unluer is the current Speaker.

THIS is the latest in a series of regular recipes courtesy of Water House – an eco-friendly restaurant alongside the Regent's Canal in Shoreditch. Head Chef Ben Spice tells us about a fish dish that is getting him excited. He says: "It couldn't be a better time to be eating fresh sardines. I'm told that, at this time of year, they are coming to their peak in terms of omega three content, and as fast spawners they are in great numbers off the Cornish and Devon coastline. "Because they are low on the food chain they are efficient feeders and don't contain the kind of harmful metal build-up you associate with larger fish. I'll be doing some specials on the barbecue on the terrace later in the summer, but we're lucky enough to have a griddle in the kitchen here at the Waterhouse. So, whatever the weather, our little spot by the canal can promise the magic of a day by the sea."

Grilled sardines with safsouf

Serves 4

Preparation time
30 mins

Cooking/soaking time
20 mins

Ingredients

For the safsouf

- 200g bulgar wheat
- 2 cloves of garlic crushed/finely chopped
- 1 preserved lemon (or the zest and juice of a fresh lemon)
- 6-8 tbsp extra virgin olive oil
- 200g cooked chickpeas
- large bunch flat leaf parsley chopped
- large bunch mint, chopped

For the sardines

- 4 onions sliced
- 3 peppers sliced
- 4 tbsp extra virgin oil
- 10-12 Cornish sardines
- 4 cloves garlic crushed
- 1 tsp roasted coriander seeds
- 1 tbsp sea salt
- Black pepper to taste
- 1 tsp sumac (available from Turkish and North African shops)

Method

- Soak bulgar wheat in salted water for 20 minutes. Drain and squeeze out excess water
- Add all remaining ingredients shortly before serving
- Slowly caramelize onions in pan with a little oil and add sliced peppers
- In a pestle and mortar pound coriander, garlic, salt and pepper to a paste. Add oil and rub mixture onto sardine skin
- Under a hot grill cook sardines for 2-3 minutes on each side until golden brown
- Serve with safsouf, caramelised onions and peppers, and a wedge of lemon.

Are you ready for some nourishing sardines?

Water House is a social enterprise that trains local people in the ethos of eco-friendly best practice in the restaurant industry. ### Have drinkers left?

RESIDENTS are being urged to give their views on whether alcohol consumption restrictions in Gillett Square are effective. A year ago residents and businesses expressed concerns about alcohol-related anti-social behaviour in the square, and following consultation, a Designated Public Place Order (DPPO) was enforced. This gave police the power to confiscate alcohol being consumed in the area and prosecute offenders. This enforcement was in addition to increased police patrolling in the area and an outreach programme targeting street drinkers.

Now the Council would like to hear views on whether alcohol related anti-social behaviour has been reduced; whether the order has moved the problem to another area; and if the boundary should be extended. To give your views before 19 July visit: www.consultationfinder.com/hackney Alternatively call Richard Lewington on: 020 8721 2031; or e-mail: richard.lewington@met.police.uk

Terrace views

TIME is running out to have your say on draft planning and design guidance for Dalston Lane Terrace.

Major works are needed to bring the terrace back into use, and the Council wants input to help shape the guidance, which will set out potential planning and design policies, as well as guiding development and giving confidence for future developers. People can give their views until 9 July at 4.30pm.
